Your sweet and beautiful face is deep blue, dark as the sky. Ocean of compassion, creator of the three worlds!

Indranīladyutim (Sanskrit, Bri. Sashwatamrita)

indranīladyutim śyāmavarṇṇam – lōlam indīvarēkṣaṇam sundarākṣam indusamam mugdha-cārugātram – dēvam
indrādi-vanditam pādayugmam

Lord Krishna, whose lustrous dark complexion is like that of blue sapphire, has eyes as charming as the blue lotus. His glance is gentle, and His face as beautiful as the full moon. His divine feet are worshipped by gods like Indra.

mālēyacandana-carccitāṅgam – divya mālyādalaṅkṛta vakṣōruham makaranda-madhurita-mandahāsam – bhakta mānasē bhāvanā-lōla rūpam

Sandal paste anoints the Lord's limbs, and fragrant garlands adorn His chest. His smile is as sweet as honey, and His form transports devotees into a meditative state.

gōrōcanāṅkita phālataṭam – dhanya gōpikānanda-vilāsakandam gōvatsa-pālana-sēvanārttham – puṇya gōvarddhanōddhāram līlāmayam

Krishna's forehead is adorned with the mark of gōrōcana (a fragrant medicinal extract). He is the cause of the gōpis' (milkmaids') happiness. The Lord enacted the divine sport of raising the Gōvardhana mountain to protect the cowherds.

bhāvanōllāsa-vilāsa-raṅgam – bhakta hṛdaya-mandāralatā-nikuñjam bhavarōga-tāraṇa vēṇunādam – bhakti mukti-pradāyakam mantra-nādam

The hearts of devotees, which are as tender as Mandara, the heavenly flower, are saturated with bliss from remembering the Lord. The sound of His flute helps to overcome the miseries of the world, and its entrancing music bestows devotion and liberation.

Sitting in the dark (English, Madhu)

Sitting in the dark, crying to the stars,
Will my mother not hear my call?
Silence all around, hiding in the clouds,
Even the moon abandons me.

Just like a child lost in a fair,
I cry for my mother to come.
I want to give up on this painful life,
but I know She won’t want that.

She wants me to keep moving forward
Though She knows the going is tough.
yet I lose hope, my faith wanes
I feel alone, angry and hurt.

Then a soft breeze caresses my face,
Gently playing with my hair.
As it leaves, there lingers
the presence of jasmine.

Never can you leave me behind
I have bound you to my heart
